Power On The Farm

No industry under the sun has greater, more numerous and more varied problems besetting it than has agriculture. Nowhere, perhaps, are these problems more difficult of solution than in Western Canada, because of the immense range of the country and wide variation in seasonal and soil conditions, and by no means least of these problems is the power question for the farm.

A few years ago the introduction and popularization of large scale power machinery for farm use on the prairies, gave rise to a highly controversial topic usually designated: "The Horse versus the Tractor." Many farmers aligned themselves in one of two camps, those who favored horses as the motive power on the farm and those who regarded the tractor as the one and only form of power while for field operations.

The controversy at times became tinged with bitterness and threatened to become an open feud. Cudgels—verbal ones, of course, were wielded with great vigor and even governments, university authorities and editors of farm papers were accused of trucking to the one side or the other.

For some years it looked as though the advocates of power machinery were in the ascendancy and it was even freely predicted that the time was not far off when the horse would be as extinct as the proverbial dodo, save perhaps for a few specimens that would be preserved in zoological gardens for the benefit of the curious and the student of natural history.

After awhile the question appeared to lose interest as a public controversial issue within the agricultural domain. The bitterness gradually disappeared and discussion assumed a more moderate complexion.

Reason, which appeared to be tottering on her throne whenever the issue was raised, re-assumed her swart partly because, like most other things, it gradually dawned on the general consciousness that there were two ideas to the question and that neither was the other was wholly right or entirely wrong.

Changing conditions also, which have a habit of occurring in a non-static world, revealed that what might be true under certain conditions at a given time is not appropriate under the same, or other conditions, at some other time. In agriculture, as in most other spheres there is no law of the Medes and Persians.

And at this juncture, it might not be inappropriate to remark that this is precisely the reason why farming is a hazardous enterprise and requires, in addition to a leavening of luck, a considerable amount of energy, ability and good judgment. To ensure a sporting chance of success.

But to "return to our muttons," it must be generally recognized to-day that both the horse and the tractor have their place in the agricultural scheme in the prairie provinces and both are likely to have a useful purpose to serve for many years to come.

This has recently been emphasized by A. E. Hardy, Professor of Agricultural Engineering of the University of Saskatchewan, acknowledged as one of the foremost authorities in the west on the subject, in a series of lectures to farmers.

Professor Hardy pointed out that under certain soil conditions results which are impossible with horses can be achieved by power driven machinery and vice versa. He also pointed out that in some sections of the country where soil and other conditions are different farmers would find it almost impossible to carry on with horses at the present time.

There are other considerations which must necessarily be a guide to the farmer in determining what type of power is best suited to his particular purposes and these include his own economic circumstances. There are individual farmers and even some sections of the country where a combination of the two forms of power may yield the best results.

Then, too, the aptitude of the individual farmer and the type of help he is able to secure is an important consideration. There are men who can get much better results from a team of horses than it would be possible for them to do with a tractor while, on the contrary, farmers with a mechanical turn of mind, under the same conditions, are able to achieve much more with a tractor than with horse power and with greater economy. Likewise, there are many farmers who could not get results with power machinery, whose sons aiding them on the farm have very little liking for livestock but can achieve wonders with power machinery.

So that the question of the type of power to use on the farm is one which can only be solved satisfactorily by the individual farmer, taking into consideration the class of soil and the nature of the topography of his land, the size of his holdings, his own economic circumstances and his own aptitude, predilections and prejudices as well as those of the nature of help available.

In this respect the problem is like that of many others which have been or are the subject of heated controversy. The answer does not lie in any dogmatic ruling but in the circumstances, operating conditions and aptitude of the individual.

New Style Locomotive

Is Designed To Compete With The Diesel-Electrics

Borrowing an idea from Barney Oldfield's steam racing car of 1909, a new railroad steam locomotive, designed to compete with the diesel-electrics running the new streamlined expresses was announced at the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

The new engine is steam-electric—named the "Steamotive." Its steam runs an electric turbine so electricity drives the wheels.

Oldfield's engine made quick hot "flash" steam by exposing a big area of heating pipes to fire. The new steamotive does the same. It is a midge with giant steam power. It carries a quarter mile of steam pipes all in a space the size of two office desks.

This double-deck area encloses the entire steam and heating plant. An oil burner furnishes heat. Two of these locomotives are now under construction. The announcement said their horsepower will be 2,500 each.

This rates the newest "baby" of steam power at its birth on a par with the best done so far in Diesel-electric energy. It is still a long way under the most powerful of all engines, the steam coal moguls of 6,000 horsepower. It is under the 5,000 horsepower of electric locomotives which take their "juice" from wire or third rail.

But the engineering society's announcement states the midge, by being enlarged, can be made in feasible sizes of 10,000 horsepower per boiler.

Diesel-electrics at present run from 900 to 1,000 horsepower per unit and are small enough so as many as four units have been hooked together on one locomotive.

The "steamotive" engine's power comes mainly from the fact its steam is produced at pressures of 1,500 pounds a square inch. A little of this steam does the work of a lot of the lower pressure steam ordinarily used in locomotives.

The water is driven at high speed through the heating pipes in order to prevent the danger of explosions of the super-power steam.

Turkeys For British Market

Largest Shipments Will Be From The Prairie Provinces

Present prospects are that approaching 3,000,000 pounds of turkeys will be exported from Canada to the British Isles in 1934 for Christmas, most of which will be from the three Prairie Provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The first shipment of Canadian turkeys to the British market for the Christmas trade was made in 1932, when well over 1,000,000 pounds of chilled and frozen birds found ready buyers because of their recognized flavor and quality. All of the turkeys exported from the Dominion are graded, packed and inspected according to Dominion Government standards before shipment.

Turkey raising has developed into quite a substantial industry in Canada in recent years. Of this year's export movement it is expected Manitoba will supply the largest percentage. The shipments for export will go forward both chilled and frozen.

While the principal development in turkey raising in the past few years has been in Western Canada, the industry has been making considerable progress in Eastern Canada, particularly in Ontario and Quebec, where artificial hatching and rearing is carried on somewhat extensively. Most of the production, however, comes from farmers engaged in mixed farming who raise comparatively small flocks.

Foreign Capital In U.S.

Survey Indicates Foreign Holdings To Be Approximately Seven Billion Dollars

Publishing for the first time the details of foreign capital movements about which President Roosevelt recently expressed concern, the United States treasury disclosed a $2,281,659,000 net inflow of funds from abroad between Jan. 1, 1933, and last Sept. 30.

This influx, representing the excess of funds coming into the country over those going out, came chiefly from Great Britain, Switzerland, France, the Netherlands and Canada. Correlated with commerce department reports on capital movements, the treasury survey indicated foreign holdings in this country approximately $7,000,000,000—believed the highest in history—on Sept. 30.

Bill Voted Down

House Of Lords Rejects Measure To Permit Medical Men To Kill Incurable Patients

The house of lords voted down proposed legislation to permit medical men to kill patients suffering from agonizing incurable ailments.

Under the weight of opposition from such persons as Lord Dawson of Penn, the king's physician, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, the proposal was rejected by a vote of 35 to 14.

Despite present defeat, the bill's sponsor, Lord Ponsonby, predicted eventual passage of a revived measure to permit "euthanasia" (easy death).

"I am certain," he said, "that the time will come when parliament will have to regulate the matter and I am certain that a measure of this kind will be accepted some day."

"I am afraid the alliance between the greats of the Church of England and doctors will defeat me, but I think it is not the first time the priesthood and medical men have worked together."

In leading opposition to the bill, Lord Dawson said sentiment was growing that the act of dying should be made more gentle, but that doctors alone could determine whether a patient's desire for death was mere impatience.

The Archbishop of Canterbury said "I cannot but think it is better to leave this difficult and delicate matter in the hands of the medical profession rather than to drag it into the open and regulate it by legal procedure."

"In this matter I would trust the judgment and honor of the medical profession."

Viscount Fitzalan, a Roman Catholic, said "People of all creeds have as a whole accepted the tradition that the Almighty reserves to Himself alone the power to determine the moment when life shall become extinct."

Seats For Coronation

Large Number Of Applications For Seats To View The Procession

A large number of applications for seats from which to view the coronation procession in London next May have been received by Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner, and it has been decided to close the subscription list for seats at the high commissioner's disposal on Jan. 1. Announcement to this effect was made from the office of the prime minister.

Stands are being erected along the procession route by the United Kingdom government and certain sections have been allotted at cost to high commissioners of the various dominions. As it is expected the demand may exceed the supply it has been decided all applications for accommodations at the disposal of the Canadian high commissioner should be made before the end of the year.

It was further announced applications for these seats must be made individually and that none will be considered if made through an agency, institution, booking office or business firm.

Canadians wishing to obtain reservations in the sections allocated to the Canadian high commissioner will apply direct to his secretary at Canada House in London.

Just An Imaginary Line

International Boundary Means Nothing To Canadian Beaver

The Canadian-American boundary at International Falls, Minnesota, is just an imaginary line to a band of beavers so customs officials are forced to tolerate their "unauthorized entry" into the United States. The Canadian beavers live on Rainy River island but selected the American shore for food and food supplies. American property owners, complaining about the damage, asked that the beasts be "deported."

"Deportation" must wait until spring, however, because the state game and fish department ruled the fur-bearers inviolate during their winter slumber.

Trans-Canada Aviation

Passenger And Mail Service To Be In Operation In Near Future

Trans-Canada passenger and air mail service will be in operation by 1938 or 1939 at the latest, Transport Minister Howe told members of a Montreal service club.

This service will be linked with trans-North Atlantic service which the minister said is expected to be completed in two years.

He said the Dominion government had made extensive preparations for this service. Landing fields have been established between Montreal and Vancouver at distances 50 miles apart. These fields will be ready for traffic next summer, he said.

The government plans to furnish landing fields, radio beacons and weather reports. "We will look to private interests to do the actual flying," he added.

Under recent agreements between Canada, Great Britain and Ireland, experimental flights across the north Atlantic route will be made next summer, the minister said. "Canada's job will be to pick up passengers and air-mail at the eastern border and fly them to Vancouver."

"When aviation has been developed in Canada a trip from Montreal to Vancouver will take one night and part of a day, instead of three days and four nights as required at present."

The minister said he did not believe the development of aviation would affect the railways. "Instead I believe it will help them," he asserted. "It will render people more travel conscious. We have not by any means created all the transportation which we are capable of creating in Canada."

C.N.R. Staff Changes

Several New Appointments Announced By W. A. Kingsland

Appointment of J. P. Johnson, formerly superintendent of the Calgary division of the Canadian National Railways, as general superintendent of the northern Ontario district was announced at North Bay, was announced by W. A. Kingsland, vice-president of the central region.

Mr. Johnson, whose appointment becomes effective Dec. 1, succeeds W. T. Moodie. Mr. Moodie has been transferred to Vancouver as general superintendent of the British Columbia district.

Mr. Johnson, native of Castle Bar, Que., began his railway career with the old Grand Trunk system as an operator at Warwick, Que.

W. J. Atkinson, superintendent of the Levis division, is to be superintendent of Cochrane division, replacing H. Wright, at present on leave of absence.

J. H. Pakenham, assistant superintendent of Cochrane division, is to be assistant superintendent of Laurentian division, relieving J. A. Trudel, at present on sick leave.

J. L. Alain, chief dispatcher at Cochrane, is to be acting assistant superintendent at Parent, Que., replacing J. H. Pakenham.

Praise For British Navy

One Canadian Pays Tribute To Efficient Service Rendered

R. L. Cockfield, M.D., K.C., of the Hospital, Shekhi, South China, tells this story:

Just what the British navy means to Canadians who are temporarily domiciled in lands beyond the seas, may be gathered from the following recent experience of the winter, which typified the attitude of the navy to Empire citizens wherever they may be found.

The child of my medical colleague, a Canadian also, was critically ill, and he felt the need of a consultant. Unfortunately, by the usual mode of travel, we are at least one day distant from him, therefore in this predicament, he boarded H.M.S. Robin, which happened to be anchored in the port, and stated his case to the Commander. In short order the ship was steaming "out," down the river, and within six hours we were at the bedside of the sick child.

And so, whenever at festive boards toasts are being made, there will always be a particular toast made by one Canadian in tribute to a service which fully understand the meaning of the word service. And the toast will be "The British Navy."

Memorial To Young Airman

Father Takes Heavy Stone From England To France

One of the women who care for the English war cemetery at Rouen, France, relates that a father has gone to heroic lengths to erect a memorial to the young airman, his son, who died battling in the sky during the World War. The monument is a heavy unpolished stone from Devonshire, England. It was pushed on a handcart by the father from his village in Devon to the coast. A ship carried it to the French coast, and a barge took it to the river to Rouen. From there the father set out with his handcart again and pushed the stone all the way to the cemetery. The woman caretaker showed him the grave and he hauled the huge stone onto it. Then the storm in his heart burst, and, sobbing bitterly, he said, "That is the last thing I can do for him."

The Voice Of Edison

Was Heard At Centennial Banquet Of Patent System

The American patent system, basic structure upon which are built factories which support Detroit and other cities, is 100 years old. The centennial was celebrated in all parts of the United States by historical and scientific museums and by banquets of patent attorneys. A dinner at Washington with noted inventors speaking capped the day's events. One of the speakers at the banquet was the man who made the greatest use of the patent office—Thomas Alva Edison. The late inventor was heard through the medium of one of his own products—the phonograph.

Thou Shalt Not Love

GEORGIA CRAIG

"I suppose it was inevitable, but—well, I got jealous. How could I help it? Yes, jealous of every man who smiled at, forgetting that I was the one who told you to smile! I tried to tell myself that I hated you for your tantalizing indifference. I tried, right from the start, to think of you the worst—the very worst. I didn't realize until I kissed you this afternoon that I love you; that I have loved you from the beginning."

There was a roaring clamor in Starr's head, a strange throbbing like the beat of jungle tom-toms in her veins, like the sound of those weird drums of the desert, made of stretched goatskins, that one heard when approaching an oasis. Uncanny, eerie, but so soothingly, deliciously filled with a strange delight.

Michael loved her! The Hassan of her own Arabian Nights story loved her!

She tried to realize it, and realization brought a gushing wave of feeling right from the inmost depths of her being, like nothing she had ever known before, or dreamed of. The first real thing in her life, especially in this swift merry-go-round of crazy days and nights. Michael loved her! She did not realize at just what moment he found her hands. She only knew of a sudden that he was holding them, crushing them in a strong grip that hurt and thrilled at the same time. He was begging; his voice was humble.

"It's not too late, is it, Starr? Say it isn't! We'll go away from here. I have enough money. I don't think I ever want to hear of the word again—except for what it will bring to you some day, if you'll say so—just what I already have. We'll go somewhere where no one has ever heard of that wretched 'Play-Girl.' We'll start all over again, in a home of our own where everything will be different. . . . There was an ache in his voice that petitioned: 'Starr! Say something!'"

In the darkness her lips moved wordlessly. "What could he say? Michael loved her!"

She had brought him to this, Yes, deliberately. The tantalizing indifference of which he spoke had been as far from that as it was possible to be. It had been part of a carefully-thought-out, elaborate campaign for vengeance against him and against Stephanie Dale. She had wanted to humble the proud Michael to her feet, and then she would have laughed at him! And tossed her head at the overbearing egotistic Stephanie Dale with all her Peter Stuyvesant ancestry! Sweet revenge!

In this moment of realization, revenge was a boomerang which completed its vicious parabola and landed squarely on Starr Ellison's own black head. Because she knew in this startling moment that she loved him too, that a despairing love of him had been the reason for most of the blackest moments of the days since she had known him. That realization overshadowed everything else, even the upheld scythe of the Grim Reaper which was always menacing her.

bidden dreams she had never visualized that love would be like this, an overwhelmingly emotional, throat-choking storm beside which all other emotions she had ever known paled into insignificance. A grand, and passion that rocked body and soul. The same sort of passion that Tut-Amen-Ra had known for the lovely priestess, Ama-Sun, so that he meant to be near her in time and eternity. . . .

Cursing to the depths of his own soul any one who should ever disturb their side-by-side. So much Starr Ellison understood now, in one brief, flashing moment that she had never understood before. A poignant pity for the disturbed lovers in their tomb in far-away Egypt, near the fringe of the Valley of the Queens, swept over her. Now she knew!

Michael's warm hands were gripping hers, pleading as was his voice. "Starr! Say something!"

What could she say? What could she offer this man whose dearest ideal was fine sons, and beautiful daughters? She would make him a widow almost before he was a bridegroom! She would ruin his life.

Suddenly her ears began to ring with an ominous jarring rhythm. It was all around her in the air. "Thou Shalt Not—Thou Shalt Not. . . ." The curse of her life!

Again an imaginary parade passed before her eyes, bringing the greatest heartbreak a woman could know. Sturdy little men with clear gray eyes like Michael's; little girls who looked like Stephanie. They must look like Stephanie; they could never be Starr's. She, with a wild, yearning dream of motherhood; she her pitiful few months left to live!

She strained against his enveloping arms. "Michael, let me go!"

He only laughed, the confident laugh of a conquering lover. "Why should I let you go, when I've only just found you?"

His lips were on her again—she was afloat on that sea of languorous bliss. He gave her his hand, his back his kisses, allowed herself for even a single moment the thrill of the rapture of love given and returned? And she knew she wanted him to speak—as he was—whispering the crazy sort of things lovers always whisper—she wanted his endearments, with his eyes melting into hers.

so ready to forgive, to take all blame to himself! If only that were all that lay between them—if it only a thing like that, with all it implied, were what was keeping them apart! If only she could have flung herself into his arms and cried:

"I made a mistake, Michael-Hassan! A terrible mistake. But I'm ready to make up for it—for anything—by giving you my whole future, by devoting it, myself, all the love of my full heart, to making you happy!"

How bitter those words: "If only. . . ."

Another voice suddenly cut through the darkness. A form was materializing, outlined against the lighted open windows. Lance Marlowe, this time. Seeking a promised dance. Starr had never been so glad to see Lance since the first time she had met him. She held out her hands to him, laughing.

"It's nice to see I'm not forgotten, Lance! I'm dying to dance!"

Michael said swiftly, under his breath:

"Don't go like this, Starr, without giving me an answer!"

She managed a stricken whisper. "I can't tonight, Michael—honestly. . . . Give me a few hours—say tomorrow night at Lance's party at the Sea Beach Casino." And then she fled from him.

As the lights from the ball room struck Starr's face when he led her to the open window, Lance said to her:

"You look as if you'd been seeing ghosts out there, Starr."

CRAWLED UPSTAIRS ON ALL FOURS

Owing to Rheumatism in Her Knees

It was not a very dignified way of going upstairs, but it had rheumatism in her knees, and it was the best she could do, at the time. Since then, she has been taking Kruschen Salts, and now feels much better. Read her letter:—

"I had very painful gout in my big toe and could only get upstairs on all fours owing to rheumatism in my knees. It is over three years ago since I commenced taking Kruschen Salts. I must say on damp days I still have a little gout, but my knees are quite better. I am now 60 years of age, have a complexion like a girl's and feel very fit. I am fully repaid for taking a half teaspoonful of Salts each morning in a cup of hot water."

(Mrs.) A.W.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently caused by deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating every liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action, and help them to get rid of the excess acid which is the cause of so much suffering.

see him, too, might take from her all her will power to deny the love that was a consuming flame. There was only one answer. Michael was coming, was even then on his way. She must get out, away from the Egyptian-looking penthouse before he got there.

Fear Plays Large Part in Life Of Some Children

Few adults realize what a large part is played by fear in the life of a child. Some there are who can recall their early days and nights when fear was a very real and terrible sensation and these will look with kindly tolerance upon the child's unreasoning terrors. Fear of the darkness, fear of punishment, fear of failure in physical and mental contests, all influence the lives of many children, crippling and handicapping in the race of life.

A Notable Compliment

George Robertson Of Ottawa Selected As Judge Of New York Poultry Show

A notable compliment has been paid to Canada by a United States organization. The North Eastern Poultry Producers' Company requested the services of George Robertson of Ottawa, Assistant Dominion Poultry Husbandman, Central Experimental Farm, Dominion Department of Agriculture, to act as judge to select what is known as the hen of the year at their poultry show which was held in New York City from November 10 to 14, 1936. This show is one of the leading annual exhibitions of poultry in the United States and the request for a Canadian judge was regarded one of the highest possible compliments in the realm of poultry judging.

When the invitation came to act as judge at New York, Mr. Robertson replied that he was booked to act at the same time at the Ottawa Winter Fair, where for thirty years in succession he had acted as judge. However, the promoters of the New York show wired that the matter was one of tremendous importance to the American Poultry Association and to the poultry industry as a whole that he should make the award in the major competition of the New York Show. The management of the Ottawa Winter Fair, therefore, considered that in view of what might be regarded as a distinct compliment to Canada, he should go to New York; and for the first time in 30 years George Robertson did not judge at Ottawa.

It was only recently that another high honour was paid Mr. Robertson when at the convention of the American Poultry Judges' Association, held at Topeka, Kansas, in September, 1936, he was elected president of the association. This is the first time since 1873 when the association was organized that a Canadian has been elected president. Mr. Robertson was further honoured by being elected to the very responsible position of chair of the Standards Revision Committee of the American Poultry Association. For several years he has been a judge at the leading poultry shows throughout Canada and the United States.

And that which fell among thorns are they, which when they have heard go forth, and are choked with the cares and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection. Luke 8:14.

Preserve me from my calling's snare. And hide my simple heart above. Above the thorns of choking care. The glided baits of worldly love.

Anything, no matter how deeply it is hidden, which is allowed in the heart contrary to the will of God will cause us to fall before our enemies. Any root of bitterness cherished against another, any self-seeking, any harsh judgments indulged in and slackness in obeying the voice of the Lord, any doubtful habits or surroundings, any of these things will effectually cripple and paralyze our spiritual life. Our blessed Guide is always secretly discovering these things to us by continual pangs of conscience, so that we are left without excuse.

Does Honesty Pay?

Usually, the answer is as obvious as the fact that two and two make four, no matter how you try to get any other total. Is there a substitute for honesty in our friends, our neighbours, our business associates? Would not the very foundations of our everyday life topple without the trust and faith we put in the word of others?

Sometimes, in our haste to attain a certain difficult objective, we may overlook certain factors. Perhaps it is wise then that we should stop now and ask ourselves that simple yet essential question, "Does Honesty Pay?"

An individual certainly makes little progress if he consistently adopts a policy which is not fundamentally honest. Therefore, does it not follow that a group of individuals would suffer the same penalty if it adopted a similar policy?

In other words, can two wrongs ever make a right? Can this province afford to pay the penalty of breaking faith with those who accepted our word in good faith? Will the immediate gain be more than wiped out by loss of our individual and collective honesty in the immediate future in the eyes of those to whom we MUST eventually go for financial support?

The answers to these questions concern every man, woman and child in Alberta today. Our future and our children's future is at stake.

This statement is one of a series written by The Mortgage Lenders Association of the Province of Alberta. The Association is composed of 34 member companies. It represents hundreds of thousands of small investments by typical Canadians. Its loans to citizens of Alberta amount to some forty-five million dollars.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. Strange, Director, "Crop Testing Plan."

The price of wheat is governed by the supplies available and as well by the demand for those supplies.

It is because we forget "demand" that we are sometimes disappointed when price does not rise as we think it should. Two years ago, for instance, we heard of a serious world shortage of wheat and coarse grains, yet price to our disappointment, did not rise. Why? Simply because the demand fell off to the same extent as the supplies had become decreased.

Happily, now and then, the reverse is the case. We have had a good instance recently.

During the past few weeks it became apparent that the crop of the Argentine was larger than expected so naturally wheat prices began to decline. Suddenly unexpected demands for wheat appeared, so that in spite of the weight of the larger supplies, prices actually rose.

As far as can be judged the extra demands came from some countries which are "stocking up" with wheat, either in preparation for war, or because of fear of it.

It seems, apparently, that large supplies of wheat are just as necessary to conduct a war as are supplies of copper, nickel, lead, cotton, rubber and oil.

Prices have tended to be raised by the following: European countries buying wheat heavily—Fear of war in Europe continues—Private estimates Argentina crop lower than expected—China starts purchasing wheat—Germany purchases Canadian wheat under new trade agreement.

Fears that rust epidemic may develop in Western Canada should rains occur next summer heavy enough to overcome present lack of moisture by the following: Harvesting of wheat favorably—Rains occur in North wheat now general in Australia—in the subsoil.

Prices have tended to be lowered by the following: Harvesting of wheat now general in Australia—Seeding of Italy's crop proceeding favorably—Rains occur in North Africa—India shipping barley heavily—Argentina and Danubian countries make heavy shipments of maize and rye—Rains benefit newly sown India crop.

In connection with the statement of the Alberta Government published last October regarding certain types of trees being available to farmers for transplanting, it was learned in an interview given to-day by the Honorable C. C. Ross, Minister of Lands and Mines, that a large number of Lodgepole Pine, and to a lesser extent Scotch Pine, are still procurable from the Forestry Division of the Department. As a result, applications for these two species for transplanting next spring will continue to be received up to January 31st, 1937. The stock referred to is stated to be only for additions and replacements in windbreaks and natural bluffs. Application forms are obtainable from the Director of Forestry, Department of Lands and Mines, Edmonton.

On Monday evening a good percentage of the town folks and a sprinkling from the country gathered at the church to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson, who are leaving Irma shortly to make their home in Meeting Creek, Mrs. Bruce Hadow conducted a sing-song for the first part of the program, accompanied by the piano by Mrs. E. Winkel, following this Miss Aletha Knudsen lead the group games at which every one entered heartily and had an enjoyable time. In between times Mrs. Parko gave a comic reading entitled "Clinted." Mr. Reed then took the platform and after speaking very highly of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson made a presentation of a nice Alladin lamp.

Mr. Johnson very feelingly replied after which all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

After a delightful lunch the evening was closed with the hymn "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

To Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson: Dear Friends: On the occasion of your leaving this neighborhood, we desire to express to you our sincere appreciation of the very happy association which has existed between us during the term of your residence here. You have always done your best to prosper every good work and have actively supported every worthy cause, and we can assure you that your willing service has been an inspiration to us all.

We have much pleasure in making you a parting gift as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held, and we hope it will often remind you of the goodwill and best wishes of your Irma friends.

While we shall miss you very much indeed, we rejoice in the confidence that you will be carrying on the good work in your new surroundings, and we pray that under the guidance of God "you may prosper, and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth." (John 1:2.)

With the Season's Greetings From EATON'S

NEWS LETTER FROM EDMONTON

Edmonton Alberta.— During the past week there has been very little news that hasn't related to the stirring events in connection with the constitutional crisis in London. Edmonton like every other part of the Empire has been tremendously interested in the abdication of Edward VIII and the accession of George VI. The absence of Premier William Aberhart and two of his cabinet from the Capital has also helped to create a dirth of news in the political arena.

The outstanding happening in that field has been the victory of the Liberal party in the Grouard constituency, where J.H. Tremblay's final majority was finally fixed at 180 over his Social Credit opponent, Dr. W. Desrosiers.

In a statement made at Ottawa Premier Aberhart said the Grouard riding had always been Liberal and therefore couldn't be regarded as a fair cross section of the province of Alberta's public opinion. Other members of the cabinet contented themselves with saying that the majority of the Liberals had been greatly reduced and that showed Social Credit gaining strength and not losing ground.

Christmas shopping has helped the unemployment situation in Edmonton during the past week. It was stated on reliable information that 1,000 extra employees had been given jobs in the various stores for the pre-Christmas period.

Another dramatic episode in the north country marked the week, when Rt. Rev. Bishop P. Falaise, of the Catholic Mackenzie diocese, with his three companions were rescued from Letty Harbor by Pilot Matt Berry, of Canadian Airways in his big transport aeroplane. The bishop and his party had been imprisoned there since the Arctic ocean froze up in September, when he had to abandon their mission schooner, Lady of Lourdes.

It was announced by Dr. W.W. Cross, minister of health that 3,500 men have been placed on farms for the winter through the dominion-provincial agreement and that the demand from farmers has now been practically met. Other men will be sent out if they are wanted he said.

A letter received by the Edmonton chamber of commerce from the board of trade at Butte Montana, urges this city to join with other cities in Montana and Alberta in pressing the governments of the two countries for a fast mail and passenger air service. From Montana cities through Lethbridge, Calgary and Edmonton, the dominion government is planning to inaugurate an east to west air mail service from Winnipeg through the Crownstee Pass to Vancouver, and it hoped the north and south project can be started to connect with this at Lethbridge.

Presbyterians all over the province will regret the news given out this week that Rev. Dr. Andrew Osborne pastor of First Presbyterian church, Edmonton has decided to sever his connection with that church early next spring. Dr. Osborne has been in Edmonton for five years and has won a prominent place in the social and religious circles of the capital. He has recently taken an active part in the popular radio broadcast program, "The Voice of the Church."

News From the World of Sport

Clem Loughlin seems to have taken a lease on the "Walling Wall" for he can't get his boys to poke that puck into the peep hole of the goal to count a win. If you think you can advise him what to do, now is your opportunity. The Black Hawks are collar-dwellers.

Unfortunately for Clem, he gets the rap. He picks, and his players fail to produce. Major McLaughlin puts up the dough, so he wants something for his money. The axe is being sharpened for the guillotine, for heads will surely fall.

On Dec. 29th Eddie Westcott, of Minneapolis, when he enters the roped arena in that city made famous as the home of "Ye Editor". Reports indicate Eddie's dynamite duke is in great shape once more. Here's hoping. He can be sure that a host of Viking sports will be well-wishing for a successful outcome.

Jesse Owens covered 100 yards in 12 seconds at Chicago, last June. They tried to get it down in the record books. Nothing doing. Why that track was found to be three fifths of an inch short. Though sailing along ten yards a second that fraction of an inch would not mean more than a bump on a nose's whisker, but it prevented a record. It is to laugh.

Lionel Conacher is rated as the greatest athlete Canada has produced. For ten years he has been tops in Big League Hockey. He took his sports as the seasons rolled around, baseball, rugby, boxing, wrestling and hockey. He rose to champion wrestler in amateur heavy class. He made a fine showing against Dempsey in an eight round bout. One day he played a football final in the afternoon and that night a hockey final in amateur schedule. His muscles never get rusty by inaction.

In baseball they look upon every play as somebody's loss. In the 18-year-old pitcher, a free agent. This would have made it possible for him to sell himself for $100,000. By declaring him property of Cleveland, and ordering that club to pay $7,000 to sell himself for $100,000, he spoiled a very romantic situation. The wealthy club-owners get the breaks, and the money, while the players get the honors, and money spins over.

Viking Items.

On Monday eve a number of associates in the United Church Sunday School made a surprise call upon Mr. C.P. Purvis. Receiving a hearty welcome they spent the evening in games and entertaining features. After a generous luncheon presentation was made of a fountain pen. The present Superintendent Mr. H.B. Collier in his address recalled the pioneer days which Mr. Purvis had been a moving spirit, notably a class of young men. Mr. Purvis made a suitable reply voicing the pleasure he had throughout the years in association with the United Church Sunday School.

Residents of Viking and the surrounding district have always taken a lively interest in home talent productions, whether musical or histrionic. And on Friday evening a full house greeted local thespians when the mystery comedy The Green Ghost was produced. Mrs. A. Bird as Caroline Van West, the rich, irascible and eccentric aunt, dominated the stage and gave a most convincing performance. Her nephew, Rignald Van West (T. Matthews) gave a very satisfying representation of what one expects from such a name. Later when it was revealed that he is really a detective in the employ of the company carrying on the investigation of the ghost, he is quite another fellow, and equally satisfying in that role.

Ernest West (Harry Lawes) as the favorite nephew—played his part very ably supported by Carol Parker (Eather) as the grandniece of the ancient Aunt Caroline. The love interest without which no play is acceptable, centered around the nephew, there was the usual happy ending. Eric vindicated and heir to the Van West home, and Carol owning the famous family pearls.

Janice Parker (Sheila Cary) referred to by her great aunt as "The Brat", had an important part in the play, providing much of the comedy with her pertinent and impertinent remarks, and her impersonation of the distracted mother of this precocious child.

Dora Van West (Mrs. D. Scott), "Willie's Wife" and a former actress was very much at home in her part, as was the colored maid Mag-nolia (Mrs. McLean). A ghost in the house gave the latter plenty of opportunity to react in true negro fashion. Lieut. Craig (A. Cary), and his associate, Detective Pitts (A. Bird), were valuable members of the cast and while they seemed at first to be a little out of place, they were finally accorded the credit for untangling the mystery. A. H. Cartwright (J. Brennan), later proven the villain in the piece, did well in a difficult part. Dr. Barr (H. Cartwright) prescribed with a truly professional manner. The richness and suitability of the costumes calls for special mention. In a small prairie village it is perennially astonishing that costumes in local productions measure up to requirements so fully.

The Little Symphony Orchestra made its bow playing generously before the performance and between acts. As director of the play and also as conductor of the orchestra Mr. Matthews carried a heavy burden of responsibility, and earned highest commendation for the evening's entertainment.

The excellent stage arrangements and lighting effects were in charge of Dave Scott whose artistic touch made the stage look so realistic. If the voice of the ghost was a bit robust, and the last section of the orchestra somewhat preponderant at times, those were small matters in an evening of so much excellence.

The Viking Hockey Team spent last Saturday night down in Sedgewick, where they crossed sticks with the team from that town. The Sedgewick team had the best of the play to having had a few practices while the Viking boys were without that.

It was the first time on skates for some of the boys, but they put up a good battle and the fans got their full value for their money.

The play was very fast for the first game and the Sedgewick team with more finish around the net come out on top. The real reason they won by the margin they did was due to a penalty that was issued to our star defence man Tora during the time he was off they scored five big goals.

The outstanding player for Viking was Ronald McLaren while A. Eastly shone for Sedgewick.

There will be a hockey game here on the night of Dec. 30th and we would like to see all you old fans and as many new ones as possible there. The Viking team is out to win the league this year, but we need your support.

Here and There

Famous officers of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Sir John A. Macdonald, Prime Minister of Canada, arrived at Revelstoke recently and held a series of historic meetings. Among them were Donald A. Smith, George Stephen, James J. Hill, Van Horne and Shagnessy, names associated for the past half century with the construction of Canada's first transcontinental railway. The party actually comprised a group of film players portraying the historic characters in the tense board-room sequence of "The Great Barrier", Gaumont British picture depicting the strenuous railway construction days fifty years ago.

New Breed of Sheep for Canadian Farmers.

Shown above on their arrival in Canada in the Canadian Pacific Steamships freighter Beaverbrae are several sheep that will mean a great deal to Canadian farmers in the future. They are a gift to the Province of Ontario from the Kerry Hill Sheep Society in North Wales and are an outstanding breed of general utility sheep, which, due to their adaptability to any environment, are expected to gain rapid favor in this country.

The gift of the pen of ten ewes and one ram was arranged through the good offices of W. Rupert Davies, president and editor of the Kingston, Ont., Welsh-Standard. These prize winners, products of generations of breeding with the most careful methods of selection being exercised, are destined for the Ontario Agricultural Society at Guelph, from where the strain is expected to spread to other parts of the country.

An idea of the economic and eugenic value of the gift pen may be derived from the fact that the eleven animals took first prize at the annual Kerry Hill Sheep Fair where some 10,000 to 15,000 sheep were shown. Besides being able to withstand bleak winter, these sheep are handsome and symmetrical, and will, it is felt, prove of great value to Canadian farmers.

The Unemployed Youth Problem

A most important contribution to the problem of providing for the care of the unemployed youth has been made by the youth division of the Federal Unemployment Commission under Alan Chambers is able to make feasible suggestions for the absorption of unemployed young men and women by industry.

Absorption by industry is mentioned as a sine qua non to the solution of this problem because it is only in this way that the problem of unemployed youth can be solved permanently and in a satisfactory manner. All other plans can be nothing more than temporary palliatives.

This section of the Unemployment Commission has already made an interim report to the Federal government and it is reported that the cabinet at Ottawa, at the time of writing, is busily engaged considering the proposals contained in the report, presumably with a view to putting into effect as speedily as possible those suggestions which may be deemed timely and appropriate.

One of the most interesting and important recommendations in the report is a proposal for the establishment of a system of apprenticeship in co-operation with industrial concerns and, for more reasons than one, this may be regarded as one of the most satisfactory features of the proposals.

In the first place a system of apprenticeship would constitute a step in the direction of a permanent solution of the problem for those young men and women who would participate.

In the second place an apprenticeship system would solve a problem which industry is facing in the near future, namely a shortage of skilled help. This is a problem which is already looming on the industrial horizon and one which is likely to become acute within the next three or four years, in the opinion of observers. Unless industry itself takes the initiative, without government aid, the country is likely to witness, in the near future, the anomalous spectacle of thousands of young people ready and presumably educationally equipped for a life vocation on the one hand and, on the other hand, industry clamoring for technically trained help but unwilling to take those available because they are not experienced.

This pending situation leads one to speculate as to the efficiency of the training conducted in the public technical and vocational training schools of the country. Are they fulfilling the purpose for which they were established and partially endowed with funds from the Federal treasury?

Some doubt may be expressed in the answer to this question in the light of present day experience. Parents find, after their sons have completed a course in these schools that, even where there are vacancies to be filled, the industry for which these lads have presumably been trained are not willing to take them because they are "inexperienced."

In illustration one might cite the automobile industry, an industry which has been reasonably busy, at least during the last couple of years, despite the depression and is showing increasing signs of vitality. Yet, when there are vacancies in automobile repair and service shops, foremen look around for men who have been previously engaged in this class of work and take them on rather than the youthful products of motor engineering classes in the technical schools because the former are experienced.

These foremen point out, and with justification, that they cannot fill a vacancy in their shops with one of these young men because they could not charge their customers the time it would take them to do a repair job, even though they were drawing a low wage. Presumably this condition will exist until the last available experienced man has been absorbed and the industry is forced to take on youths turned out by the technical schools with no completed course to their credit.

In the meantime, the vocational schools are turning out young men apparently equipped to take their place in the industrial world only to find there are no jobs for them or that they must take some other work which could be undertaken by those who have had no vocational training.

All of which leads to the impression that some effort will have to be made in the vocational schools to conduct the work on a more practicable basis than has hitherto been available, so that when youths leave to adventure into the world of industry they will at least be as well qualified as second or third year apprentices.

This may mean remodeling the classes in the vocational schools under changed conditions or other changes will have to be made in the system of training through a hook-up with industrial concerns.

It might also be said without contradiction that industry itself has been short-sighted in not having provided for future requirements by establishing a system of apprenticeship on its own account on a general scale.

The Greatest Inventor

A number of men were engaged in a discussion as to who was the greatest inventor. Some said Edison, some said Marconi, some said Morse. Finally a small Jew said: "Well, gentlemen, those were great peoples, but I tell you, the man who invented interest was no fool."

Horse Scared To Death

Light Beam No One Sees

Pure African Air Makes Powerful Beacon Light Invisible

Every night a 3,000-foot beam of light is thrown into the sky at the Empire Exhibition at Johannesburg, South Africa, by a 14,000,000-candlepower beacon—yet no one can see it! The Johannesburg climate is to blame. It has beaten the engineers who set out to make the beam visible for 100 miles. They installed the apparatus in a hollow tower, 150 feet high and dominating the entire exhibition. This they called the Tower of Light.

Their plans have miscarried. All spectators can see on a cloudless night is the glow of the stars, even when the light is fully switched on.

This paradox is caused by the purity of Johannesburg's air. There are no humidity, no dust and no low clouds for the light to be reflected against—and light is invisible unless it is reflected, a scientist has explained to the exhibition authorities.

Thus the most powerful light in South Africa cannot be seen. Durban Bluff lighthouse is only 3,000,000 candlepower and the Cape St. Francis light is 5,000,000 candlepower, but they flash down on to the sea. If for a second the 14,000,000 candlepower Johannesburg light could be turned down on to the exhibition grounds every one would be temporarily blinded. Similarly if an airplane would fly in the beam's path, it would be "picked out" with daylight clarity up to a height of 3,000 feet.

New Means Of Livelihood

Poor In Japan Earn Money From Cat Hunting

Japanese poor have turned to cat catching for a livelihood. They sell the cats to makers of musical instruments for manufacture of cat gut strings. With a fluttering sparrow as bait and a club for a weapon, the cat catcher starts his work at daybreak—when the toms and their mates are returning from a tour of the night spots.

The cat catcher pulls a string attached to his sparrow's legs. The bird squeaks and attracts pussy who attacks. The cat jumps and the stalker bangs with a club—thereby ending kitty's nine lives.

One hazard—the cat catcher is liable to prosecution for destruction of private property if caught with an animal belonging to someone else.

Nineteen Years Of Flying

Imperial Airways Commander Has Flown 1,300,000 Miles

Known as the "Captain Kettle of the Air," because of his pointed beard, O. P. Jones, one of the senior commanders of Imperial Airways, has now spent an aggregate time in the air of just over a year and a half, and has piloted aircraft a distance equivalent to 52 journeys round the world.

He has completed 19 years of flying, during which time he has been in the air nearly 13,000 hours, has carried approximately 90,000 passengers without mishap, and has flown 1,300,000 miles. Mr. Jones is only 38.

All Empire Wood

In a letter to the Times, the Chief Royal Engineer notes that as the wayfarer goes up the escalator at Moorgate Station he goes on a trip through the Empire's forests. The whole of the balustrade is composed of beautiful panels of wood from every part of the Empire. Canada, Newfoundland, Africa, India, and Britain itself are rich in timber wealth. But why, he asks, restrict this excellent idea to Moorgate Station?—Canada's Weekly, London.

Woodpeckers do not carry grass and feathers to line their nests, as do many other birds, but they cannot be considered lazy. Few birds work as diligently as woodpeckers in building their homes. They are the master carpenters of the bird world.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your large daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

A more bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of nature but have no poison or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else, Sir.

Learning To Walk Again

Alfred Scadding Suffers Greatly Even Taking Few Steps

Seven months after the Moose River Mine in Nova Scotia collapsed, Alfred Scadding, one of the survivors, is learning to walk again.

Scadding began creeping around the room, clinging to tables and the bed and then tried a little trip to his small daughter's room.

Even such a jaunt means his ankles and heels caused him torture. Red welts show the efforts of surgery to save his feet. He hopes they succeed.

Scadding went out to a couple of football games but, each time he paid in pain for the fun because the cold aggravates the agony.

With Dr. D. E. Robertson, of Toronto, Scadding was rescued from the cave-in last April that brought death to Herman Magill, of Toronto, from exposure.

According To Color

Red Houses In Istanbul, Turkey, Indicate High Social Status

There soon won't be any trouble in deciding which is "Park Avenue" in Istanbul, Turkey—all the houses will be painted bright red. And, to prevent less fortunate citizens from forgetting that they live in slums, their homes will be dull gray.

This branding of the different sections of the ancient city is expected by the Municipal Council to make it one of the most original in the world. The Council decreed that houses in the same section must be painted the same color according to "the breadth of the streets, the brightness of light and particularly, on the social classes to which the inhabitants of the different quarters belong."

No vehicles will be permitted on "red" streets, which are reserved for pedestrians.

Synthetic Chocolate

New Product Of Nazi Germany Makes Big Hit

German store windows are enticing the prospective customer's interest and pocketbook almost daily by displaying the latest in synthetic products.

The article that made an immediate hit with Germans was synthetic "chocolate," one of the substitute products of which Nazi Germany is most proud. Wrapped up in the ordinary paper and advertised as "particularly nourishing and tasteful," it looks like a bar of creamy caramel and tastes somewhat like it. The only brown touch left to the German "chocolate" is the few raisins contained.

Root Crops Better

Bureau Of Statistics Issues Report On 1936 Crops

Production of potatoes, turnips, marigolds, etc., alfalfa and sugar beets in Canada this year was higher than in 1935 but production of hay and fodder corn was lower, the Dominion bureau of statistics reports. Increased sowing of fall wheat but decreased seeding of fall rye were also reported. The information was contained in the bureau's report on 1936 field crops. For potato, root and fodder crops the figures represent the second estimate of the season.

Taking Full Advantage

A tourist saw a sign outside a hotel which read, "Free Garage." He decided to stay the night, and put his car in the garage. On leaving for a stroll he was approached by the attendant, who asked him what accommodation he required. "Oh—er—I'm none, thank you," he replied. "I'm sleeping in the car."

Few Dogs In Russia

Dogs are almost non-existent in Russian cities, for three reasons: Russians fear and dislike dogs, except in the rural regions, where they are trained to work. Crowded living quarters leave little room for pets. Costs of feeding a dog is generally too much for the proletariat.

When the alligator roars, it emits a musky scent which can be detected miles away.

Sees Another Depression

Economist Says Future Holds Both Threat And Promise

Willard L. Thorp, director of economic research for Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., told the American Finance conference that "if depression is around the corner behind us, it is also around the next corner in the future."

Thorp said in reference to the "next corner" that there "are no grounds for assurance that it is not there."

"Already, I find evidence in isolated spots of the appearance of a 'boom psychology,'" he said. "With expanding consumer purchasing power, interest rates low and six years of enforced consumer economy behind us, some are seeing no limit to the current upswing."

"We seem to be headed for what a British professor calls a period of optimistic terror."

The "problems of prosperity," Thorp said, "are more difficult than those of depression. . . I know no condition which is more dangerous for a business than a period of sustained high profits."

He asserted there was a need of "economic leadership," because the "future" includes both threat and promise.

Outstanding Athlete

Dr. Phil Edwards Of Montreal Awarded Memorial Prize

Dr. Phil Edwards, dusky Montreal runner, was awarded the Norton H. Crow Memorial prize as Canada's outstanding athlete and sportsman of the year.

The great British Guiana middle-distance man, a point-winner for Canada at three Olympic games, was honored with the award at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada at Regina.

His great Olympic record and his years' track work with McGill University inspired the committee in recommending Edwards for the award.

Robert "Scotty" Rankine, Preston, Ont., distance runner, was the only other nominee.

Since the award was made first in 1931 to Percy Williams, Vancouver, it has been won by Alec Wilson, Montreal; Jimmy Hall, Winnipeg; Harold Webster, Hamilton, Ont., and Aileen Meagher, Halifax.

Would Sell Submarine

British Admiralty Would Accept Any Reasonable Offer

Does anybody want a submarine? The lords of the British admiralty are prepared to accept any reasonable offer for submarine X1 which once cost more than £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) to build.

Idle and unwanted, although 10 years ago she was described as a "diving cruiser" and "dreadnaught of the undersizes," X1 is just gathering rust in Portsmouth dockyard for want of a buyer.

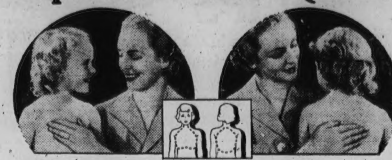

With accommodation for 110 men she was once the largest submarine in the royal navy but smaller craft are now preferred for strategic reasons.

This Safe, External Treatment Helps END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warm cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.
2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute direct to the irritated air-passages. This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion.

During the night, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets
This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —

She sent Sapphira out on some errand pretence while she got into her street clothes faster than she had ever thought anybody could, aside from some vaudeville quick-change artist. She flew out of the apartment, ran for the elevator, jamming her hand on her head. Sapphira would have to attend to Michael. Or he would have to attend to himself. She would not be there to make any explanations when he arrived. And she would have a chance to think.

Starr had no vaguest idea where she was going, except that she was on her way. She slid out of the ornate entrance like some one being hunted—eyes alert for any sign of Michael. Thank heaven, his maroon car was nowhere in sight. She halted the first taxi that passed, and ordered the man to drive through the Park. That was getting her a chance to consider the next step. Though what it would be she had not the faintest idea. She wanted Michael—she wanted Love—but she could not see him must not accept them. She must find some way of refusing them that would not hurt—Michael—Hassan—too much.

At the Hundred and Tenth Street entrance to the Park, a passing bus gave her an idea. She leaned forward to speak to the driver through the open glass.

"The Connecticut buses go past here somewhere, don't they driver?" she asked.

"Sure do, Miss. But the best place from here, if you're wanting to take one, is Hundred and Twenty-fourth and Lenox, or maybe Fordham. You can 'bout catch one—they go on the hours from downtown—"

"Hurry!" said Starr. "I want the Stamford bus."

She could not have told why she did that, for the life of her. It was merely somewhere to go. It was an hour later when she got out of the big whirling bus in the centre of the smart Connecticut town. The first time she had ever been here, as much as she had heard of the place.

Standing at the circle she had no slightest idea of where she meant to turn next. The flickering lights of a movie house gave her an idea, but the advertised entertainment in no way appealed to her. It was getting toward what would be bedtime time in New York. She wondered if she could find some kind of show that evening who were not soon to forget the party. Certainly the events which transpired were startling enough to the point of sensationalism.

It was a heavenly night for a party and for late September, Starr thought as the car purred along the Long Island roads toward the Casino. Balm and sweet, with the last warm kisses of Summer in the air. There was a moon, too—a moon seemed always to have so much to do with the affairs of Starr Ellison!—and it was doing marvelous things to the Sound that was glimpsed at intervals, magic things that could have meant so much. And did not. It could be so perfect if—The same old "if." She refused to consider it any longer. Her thoughts for this night must be on a course she had deliberately planned. What would be the outcome?

Starr made her usual sensation when she entered the Casino on the arm of Lance Marlowe, the sensation to which she had become accustomed. She was wearing her favorite, clinging black velvet this night, a sheath-like thing with dazzling, glittering, sophisticated shoulder straps, that with the cool black of the frock accentuated the camel's greenness of her throat. She wore, too, long, antique silver earrings that night have been an heirloom from some Eastern princess of the blood.

Lance whispered to her as he led her into the room:

"You're marvelous! You always are. But you should not be wearing ornaments without gems. You're born for them. I know the kind you need. Fire opals—they're perfect for you, who are all fire and ice."

She gave him a long-eyed glance that could mean so much, or nothing. As a change from other occasions, Starr arrived early at this party, perhaps as was fitting as the particular guest the host chose to escort. She had been dancing some time when she first saw Michael. She had not seen him when he came in.

He was with Stephanie, and even before their eyes met, Starr saw that their painful interview of the night before was being run through in his mind this morning. He did not appear to be wanting to be with Stephanie, but she was obviously claiming him and when his glance did first meet Starr's there was an unspoken chiding in his eyes. Not that he was angry, for he was probably understood why he had not found Starr at home. She had so plainly told him that she would not give him his answer until this night.

He got a chance only in passing to remark:

"Pretty dumb to try running away from me again. You can't get away with it, sweetheart."

And Starr, in a quick whisper: "I told you I wouldn't give you my answer until tonight—"

Then she was gone, dancing with the rest of the men, all eager for a cut-in. The party was getting more lively every minute. So—Starr knew—it would reach a climatic point. That was always the way with Lance Marlowe's parties.

Before it reached that point it was inevitable that somebody should insist that "Play-Girl" sing for them—something out of her homeland of Egypt. That was getting to be one of the best publicly selling points.

Starr did not hesitate, nor wait to be coaxed. That was beneath the dignity of "Play-Girl." Always willing to oblige; always looking for encores for a little known talent. Nobody among them knew how Starr wanted to sing this night, though, as she made her way to the orchestra stand, looked over the instruments, and decided that she would use only drums for her accompaniment, and a touch of the oboe that could simulate a desert pipe. She wanted to sing one song—hoping that Michael Fairbourne, somewhere in his subconsciousness, would understand. If not tonight, sometime. It was to be a farewell song that should come out of her heart.

The lights dimmed as "Play-Girl" took up the sticks for the drum's first roll. In the odd silence, her voice lifted in the desert song of the negroes of Toungout, that song that is part of the desert, known no place else. The lift of her voice tried to carry her message to one man:

"The gazelle dies in the water,
The fish dies in the air,
But I die in the dunes of the desert sands
For no love that is deep and sad..."

Many times that night Starr was almost within speaking distance of Michael when the applause after her song had whirled her off her feet. She was back among the dancers. Always Stephanie was in the way. Stephanie was hovering around, hanging to Michael's arm, more excitedly possessive than Starr had ever seen her, her arm wound through

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile does not flow freely, it causes indigestion. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up, you feel bloated. You get constipated. Headaches poison go into the body, and you feel sour, sick and the world looks bad.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get it all done. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Castor Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a cathartic, but have no cathartic or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else, etc.

Michael's protectively as if to hold him against outside claimants. But Michael's eyes, it was equally obvious to be seen, were all for the ivory-white brunette with the age-old eyes of the priestesses of Egypt, who was too often in the arms of Lance Marlowe.

Michael, sauntering by the exquisite little bar with Stephanie saw the two at the end of a dance during which Stephanie had given him no opportunity to cut in on Starr Ellison. Lance was just filling up the glass Starr held out to him. With a challenging glance into Lance's eyes, Starr tipped her glass and drank it. She drank that, knowing she would need it for courage for what was to come.

She said crisply: "Fill it up again, Lance."

She caught Michael's glance, then, as if she had not before known he was watching her. He shook his head disapprovingly. Michael did not like to see women drinking. He was funny that way—old-fashioned. (Neither had the girl David Garrick loved like drinking.)

Michael—Starr could remember every word he had ever said on the subject. He thought it was quite all right for a girl to toy daintily with a cocktail or a champagne glass, to take a sip now and then—that was intriguing—but steady drinking was degrading. Getting tight was something no girl in her right senses ever did.

Starr's eyes met Michael's full glance as she deliberately lifted the second glass of champagne to her lips and drained it. No one who saw her could possibly have guessed at the significance of her action.

It was not suddenly that Starr had seen her way to get herself out of the terrible tangle. She had seen it that afternoon when a rather nondescript cast of actors had given a performance of "David Garrick" in a barn theatre near Stamford. She had only been biding her time for the opportunity for her own amateur performance which, would, for her, be more tragic than the soul hurts of the real David.

Michael was waiting for his answer. Well—he would have it. She could not give it to him in words. Another scene like that on the balcony at the Mayfair last night would be too agonizing.

Cold-bloodedly, Starr Ellison, with an aching heart, had planned another way.

A Common Language

Australian Senator Thinks This Would Insure World Peace

King Edward was formally requested by the Australian senate to convene a world conference to study the possibility of adopting an international language as a means of assuring peace.

The resolution, adopted upon submission by Senator Macarthur Abbott, will be forwarded to London via the governor-general's office.

Senator Abbott said he had no particular language in mind when he drafted his motion. It would be up to the conference to decide whether English or Esperanto was advisable, or whether an entirely new language should be created, he said.

Australian Naval Construction

Warship and Destroyers To Be Built In New Program

A new warship armed with six-inch guns and a squadron of destroyers will be built in Australia's Cockatoo Island dockyard under a new naval construction program announced by government officials at Canberra.

Importation of British-built cruisers will be continued for some years. Naval construction has now reached a stage where all component parts of destroyers can be made in Australia, the government believes. Two new sloops were recently launched.

Continuous employment of hundreds of shipwrights and other naval construction workers is assured by the plan, officials said. They expressed hopes that a permanent industry can be established.

CHANGED HER SHOES FIVE TIMES A DAY

Suffered for 20 Years with Rheumatism

Try and picture the life this woman lived for twenty years—changing her shoes several times a day in a vain endeavor to attain some relief from the rheumatic pains that were constantly troubling her. Then imagine her joy when she found that Kruschen was driving away the rheumatism. This is what she writes:—

"I have been using Kruschen Salts for four years. For twenty years previous I had suffered with my feet, sometimes changing my shoes five times a day, and frequently sitting without any as the pain was so great. Now I can wear the same pair of shoes all day with comfort. I cannot speak too highly of Kruschen Salts. Only those who had been in constant pain with their feet for years can realise what it is to be free." (Mrs. E.A.)

It is deposits of excess uric acid, lodged between the joints, which are frequently the cause of rheumatism. Kruschen Salts contain two ingredients—sodium and potassium—which are effective solvents of uric acid.

Too Great A Strain

Chicago Aldermen Not Equal To Using Dial Telephones

The city council of Chicago has won a two-year fight to abolish dial telephones in the city hall. It was a great battle fought as only aldermen can fight, and Chicago may not be worse than other cities in civics. These dial telephones involved too great a strain on the mental capacity of aldermen. Too much mental arithmetic was needed to dial the numbers there. This caused a mental anguish that brought a strain on the elect. The Chicago city council's efficiency was insufficient to handle dial telephones. They were trained to other things.—Brandon Sun.

Little Helps For This Week

Now therefore keep thy sorrow to thyself, and bear with a good courage that which hath befallen thee.

Go bury thy sorrow, the world has its share.
Go, bury it deeply and hide it with care.
If this be accomplished, others are blest:
Go, give them the sunshine and tell God the rest.

Trouble brings for us, if we will accept it, the boon of fortitude, patience, wisdom and sympathy. If we reject that, then we find in our hands the other gifts, cowardice, weakness and despair. If your trouble seems to have in it no other possibility of good, at least set yourself to bear it like a man. Let none of its weight come on other shoulders. Try to carry it so no one shall ever see it. Even though your heart be sad within, let cheer go out from you to others. Meet them with a kindly presence, considerate words, and helpful acts.

Develops Thornless Rose

Horticulturist At Last Realizes Dream Of Flower Lovers

The thornless rose, dream of flower lovers for centuries, has been developed at Attica, New York, from a single chance plant that "just happened to grow that way," an Attica horticulturist, Edward C. Stroh, said. After working for years to develop a thornless rose, he said he came upon a single plant free from thorns three years ago.

"It just happened to grow that way," he said. "We had been trying for years to get a rose with fewer thorns. From the single plant we developed three more the first year. Last year we grew 50, and this summer 2,000."

The thornless rose is a large double flower.

Massive bananas grown in East Africa are two feet long, as thick as an adult's arm, and a single one can make a meal for three men.
